The minimalist Rely series has expanded to include new designs creating endless customisable options.

Since Hee Welling first debuted the Rely chair in 2020, the collection has been embraced for its use of environmentally friendly materials and ergonomic design. Now, it has continued to grow with new additions to the range and evolved to be made using recycled plastic from post-consumer sources. A new bar and counter stool, a bar and counter chair, and a lounge chair have been introduced – as well as the possibility of choosing solid wooden legs for a more natural feel.

The addition of the counter stool and chair, and the bar stool and chair (HW81 – HW100) has expanded the series with designs suited for an office workspace or hospitality venue. Compact and comfortable, these pieces feature the signature, recycled plastic shell. Upholstery is also available, while the steel tube legs come in black or bronzed.

The new lounge chair version (HW101-105) features the same minimalist design cues as the rest of the Rely collection, but with splayed legs. This version can be fully upholstered to provide comfortable seating and is well suited to private and public spaces.

The original Rely chair (HW71 - HW80) has continued to evolve with the addition of a new base option. It will now be possible to choose this model with solid wooden legs in either oak or walnut, making this versatile piece equally at home in front of a desk as it is sat at the dining table.

“I believe the success of the Rely series can be connected to the thoughtful functionality of its designs,” says &Tradition founder and CEO Martin Kornbek Hansen. “The newest additions continue this legacy by melding simplicity with practicality.”
